(Special to The Evening World.)
POLO GROUNDS, June 19.—The last game of the series between the Highlanders and the Browns was played before a crowd of less than fifteen hundred. Chance was in very good shape for the final fight before leaving on his Eastern trip. George McConnell warmed up in first class shape. Manager Stovall decided to take a rest and put a young fellow named Brief at first.
FIRST INNING—Shotton lead off with a clean hit directly over second base and went to second on Brief's sacrifice. McConnell to Borton. Johnston died on a grounder. McKee to Borton, and Frost went out the same way. McKee made a beautiful stop. No runs. One left.
Daniels died on a bunt. Austin to Brief. Wolter was out on a hot ground or to Brief, unassisted. Cree slammed a pretty single into right and advanced to second as Sweeney smashed a hot one past Brief. Hartnell hit a hot line drive that struck Sweeney on the leg as he was running to second and knocked him down. This relieved the side, but Hartnell gets credit for a hit. No runs. Two left.
SECOND INNING—Williams smashed a long triple to left center and scored when McConnell fumbled the return throw after it had got by Hartnell. McIntire lifted a high one to Wolter. Austin went out. Hartnell to Borton. Agnew walked. Mitchell struck out. One run. One left.
Austin got Peckinpach's grounder

(Special to The Evening World.)
CINCINNATI, June 19.—The Giants battled the Reds for the final game on this trip today. The weather was hotter than any since the season began, and the sun-baked field, with the sun pouring down upon them, the boys went through the motion of ball playing. They did the best they could.
Manager McGraw is well satisfied with the trip, and says he will have his team in first place within three days.
FIRST INNING—Burns retired. Benton to Marsans. Groh tossed out. Tinker to Marsans. No runs.
Devore grounded to Matty for an easy out. Bescher rolled to Merkle. Bates fled to Snodgrass. No runs.
SECOND INNING—Doyle out, Tinker to Marsans. Merkle singled to Tinker. Murray was hit by a pitched ball. Meyers walked filling the bases. Snodgrass cleaned up with a triple to center, scoring Merkle. Murray and Meyers' sacrifice scored on Mathewson's out.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 19.—The Brooklyn Dodgers closed their series this afternoon. The Superbas having the Cardinals on the run, anything but a victory to-day will be displeasing to the New Yorkers.
Manager Huggins is up in the air about his St. Louis team. He gave it a big shaking up yesterday, and promised more changes.
FIRST INNING—Moran beat out an infield hit over second, but when Whitted threw low to Koney, Moran went to second. Cutshaw walked. Sengel forced Cutshaw. Hausser to Whitted. Moran going to third. Wheat singled to center scoring Moran. Daubert fled to Wingo. Sengel was caught off second by Hausser on the old hidden ball trick. One run. Two left.
Mages singled to center. Oakes popped to Wagner, trying to sacrifice. Mowrey fled to Moran. Koney beat an infield single and Magee took second. Whitted was thrown out by Smith. No runs. Two left.
SECOND INNING—Smith out. Mowrey to Koney. Fisher singled to left. Miller singled to center. Fisher moving up as J. A. Wagner suited past Marbet filling the bases. Moran singled through

INDICTMENT AGAINST HYDE DISMISSED BY HIGH COURT

Appellate Division, on Own Initiative, Throws the Case Out of Court.

WHITMAN TO APPEAL.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to-day dismissed the indictment against Charles H. Hyde, former City Chamberlain, charging him with bribery in connection with the Carnegie Trust Company-Northwestern Bank-Joseph G. Robin scandal. Hyde had already, on appeal, secured an order for a new trial. The action of the Appellate Division wipes out all charges against him and destroys the basis for the new trial.
The brief order of the Appellate Division does not deal with the Justice of the Peace's decision on Hyde's trial that his placing of city funds with the Robin banks and his connection with the defunct Carnegie Trust Company constituted bribery.
The order was as follows:
Ordered, That the said judgment be, and the same hereby is reversed, the indictment dismissed, and the defendant discharged, and said judgment is not reversed in the exercise of the Court's discretionary power, but solely for erroneous rulings on the trial in the admission and exclusion of evidence, and upon the ground that the facts proved upon the trial were insufficient

919-Foot Imperator Cheered From Flag-Decked Skyscrapers, While Whistles Shriek Welcome at End of Voyage.

With bands playing and colors flying from ship and shore, the Hamburg-American liner Imperator, queen ship of the seven seas and the biggest and most luxurious vessel ever built, moved slowly up the North River to-day with becoming dignity and docked at Pier No. 1, Hoboken, at 11:15 o'clock.
At 8:15 the Imperator left Quarantine, where she had lain at anchor since shortly before midnight. The tide was at the flood and the head of the ocean marvel was turned to the sea. She was so close to the Staten Island shore that it was determined not to chance heading her up the bay with her own steam. A fleet of tugs fitted about her ready to give a hand. With just enough power on to make steering way, she was pushed around by twenty tugs along her great side and in twenty minutes was on her way up. A haze hung over the river and progress was slow. From Quarantine only the outlines of Manhattan were perceptible.
CRAFT OF EVERY SIZE ESCORT THE GREATEST OF ALL.
A great number of boats had gone down to Quarantine to welcome the Imperator. Craft of all kinds they were—steam yachts, motor-boats, big tugs, steamers, sailboats and launches. They made a pretty sight with their display of signal flags, and everywhere the German ensign mingling with the Stars and Stripes.
Once the great ship was under way, the pleasure craft, waving flags, big and little and hats and handkerchiefs, about her, keeping well off, making a fitting train for the marine monarch. The Imperator made no show of passing. At the bow she flew the flag of the city of Hamburg. From the foremast the Stars and Stripes was hung to the breeze, and aft hung the company's flag, and from the taffrail the German ensign flew. As became a queen, she rode in her own magnificence.
The vessels forming her escort looked like rowboats from the Imperator's lofty decks.
BATTERY FILLED, SKYSCRAPERS GAY WITH BUNTING.
They were waiting for the coming of the queen at the Battery. Crowds lined the shore. The roofs and windows of the skyscrapers in lower Manhattan were thronged and bright with color. They were waiting for her along the New Jersey shore. Masses of men, women and children on both sides of the river made a kaleidoscope of color. Summery gowns and flashing ribbons made the river side look like the setting for a regatta of Yale and Harvard.
No foreign potentate could have been accorded a more remarkable welcome than that given to the wonderful ship. All the way to her dock the river shore resounded with the cheers of thousands, mingling with the roar of factory whistles, echoing the noise from the vessels on the river. Half a mile before her pier the Imperator passed the steamer Berlin on her way out. Banners on both vessels played, and the colors on each were dipped in salute. The Berlin looked like a big towboat, compared with the giantess.
The Berlin passed the Imperator at the bow, and the dog of the
